Just recently Barbara started to come out of her shell, she started to smelled the roses which she taught they smelled so go, she started to see the light at the end of the tunnel, which it lead her to having hope and happiness.

This is where you scratch your head: Barbara embarked on this new life which she was ready to take on. And the Father (God came for his child) when everything seems to be going much better for Barbara and God decided to call Barbara home. I can only imagine what Barbara was thinking to herself, "Father not now".

In her teen years, she work at McDonalds and decided that wasn't for her, then pursued data entry that flied of work wasn't not quite right ether, Barbara found her passion in cosmetology. Barbara was very soft spoken, well-mannered, very trusting soul, mostly agreeable with things. However, make no mistake Barbara would put you in your place and stand her ground (just like a rooted strong oak tree) if she needed to. Whom ever met Barbara always said she had an infectious smile. So, very quiet and humble. Barbara didn't speak much, but however, when she did speak people listen because it was such a rare occasion when she did you knew it was important to her.
